

Who is the owner of Flight Centre?

Flight Centre was founded in Australia by Graham Turner in 1982. He is the CEO and one of the key figures behind the success of the Flight Centre Travel Group. While Graham Turner remains the largest shareholder and plays a significant role in the company's direction, the Flight Centre Group is a publicly traded company on the Australian Stock Exchange (ASX) under the ticker FLT. This means the ownership of Flight Centre is spread across public shareholders but Graham Turner continues to be one of the most influential figures in its leadership. Under his guidance, the company has expanded into a global travel OTA (Live-Person) network providing both leisure and corporate travel solutions across multiple continents.

Flight Centre Travel Group is one of the most recognized travel companies in the world, providing a variety of services including vacation bookings, flight reservations, corporate travel management, and much more. Over the years, the company has become a global leader in the travel industry with a vast network of branches across multiple countries. But many travelers and industry professionals may wonder: Who is the owner of Flight Centre? In this blog, we'll explore the ownership structure of the company, its founders, and how the organization has evolved since its inception.

The Founder of Flight Centre Travel Group

The story of Flight Centre begins with its founder, Graham "Skroo" Turner, an Australian entrepreneur who had a vision to revolutionize the way people book travel. Turner founded Flight Centre in 1982 in Brisbane, Australia. His goal was simple: to provide a more customer-friendly travel booking experience, focusing on offering discounted fares and a more personalized service than what was available at the time.

Initially, Turner opened a small travel agency in Brisbane, offering discounted flights to the Australian public. The concept of providing
